FRANCE HURT:

BRITISH NOTE CAUSES SURPRISE.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

PARIS, August 13. French official circles are very disappointed with the British note. They are astonished that instead of the creditors uniting to make Germany pay, one creditor has decided to stand aside, simultaneously placing all the debtors and the Allied enemy under a common obligation. The point which has caused the greatest surprise is the linking together of the French and German war debts.

The French standpoint is that while France remitted the war debts owing to her, she was ready to pay her own debts to the Allies, but she refused to have debts made dependent on Germany's capacity or will to fulfil her obligations.

It is emphatically declared that France does not intend to repudiate her war debts.

AMERICAN OPINION.

NEW YORK, August 13. The non-committal attitude of the Washington official world has not been changed by the British

The New York Evening Post declares that any Government that refuses to accept the note as at least the basis for discussion will outrage the opinion of the world.

The Evening Sun says that nothing is left to responsible British statesmen if the argument falls but by an innings and 130 runs. Street compiled 72 to extricate the nation by the best means available. and Colonel Watson 90 not out for Sussex.

WARDING OFF STARVATION. BERLIN, August 13.

It is announced that deliveries in kind to Britain, Italy and the Allied Powers not participating in the Ruhr occupation which have hitherto been maintained, or partly maintained, will be suspended on the ground that the condition of the country necessitates the utilisation of all resources to provide the population with a minimum for existence to ward off starvation, while the continuance of deliveries would prejudice the success of taxation reform and the gold loan.

It is added that deliveries will be resumed as soon as the position permits. Germany will endeavour to continue her deliveries of coal to Italy.

SARDINES IN DEMAND.

As many as 2,000 cases (each containing 4 dozen No. I oval tins of 15 ounces) American West Coast sardines are said to have been sold since the sudden inflation of local meat prices. Importers disposing of stocks while a good many indents were booked for almost immediate shipment. If is stated that the Chinese have taken a sudden fancy to this make of sardine on account of its cheapness as compared with the price of, say, pork, which at one time was on a par with fowls.

Since the advent of the American sardine during the War, the article has come to stay in the market. Since the armistice, some importers have been trying to re-'establish the position once oc-"Very little doing with orders cupied by European brands but as

STEAMERS TO MOTOR SHIPS.

Two noteworthy points arise out of the interesting decision of the Netherland Steamship Co. to convert a 10,000-ton steamer, built as recently as 1916, to a motor ship. In the first place, if it is economical to replace the steam machinery of comparatively modern vessels with oil engines, it may reasonably be deduced that any new vessels which are laid down should be equipped with internal-combustion machinery. Secondly, says the July Motor Ship, if one shipowner finds it advantageous to convert steamers, others with ships engaged upon somewhat similar routes must consider the desirability of adopting the same policy if the maximum profit is to be obtained.

Some who have followed the motor ship movement most closely are of opinion that there must ultimately be a wholesale process of conversion, but it seems difficult to justify any general statement of this sort. Shipowners may perhaps note the remark quoted above that operating costs of motor ships are 25 per cent less than those of steamers, and thereby ascertain roughly whether the saving warrants the expenditure involved in conversion. A 10,000ton vessel with oil engines of 3,000 b.h.p. consumes about 131/2 tons of oil, against some 50 tons of coal as a steamer. At the presentday prices of oil and coal, this represents a saving of between £8,000 and £10,000 per annum, whilst there are incidental economies which vary in different trades. Remembering that, in certain parts of the world. Diesel oil can be purchased at 50s, per ton, and coal may 1919 he purchased three vessels for while we had none. We arranged cost nearly as much, it is clear that with some ships the economy of the motor vessel may be enormously greater. The relative condition of hull and engine is also an important and varying factor, and in cases | debts and the shipping slump. life, but the ship needs reboilering or other extensive repairs, a favourable opportunity is open for conversion. In brief, every case needs examination on its merits, but the fact that it has been found desirable in the instance referred to should cause the problem to fire. receive more attention than has hitherto been the case. Technically, there are no difficulties, for many types of single-screw long-stroke Diesel machinery are not constructed, so that either single-screw or twin-screw vessels can readily be converted. 🔧

there were but one standard type ground of the light of the rising sun. says the Motor Ship. It cannot be denied that in these circumstances technical development would be retarded and real economic progress would not be so rapidly attained. Nevertheless, it is as well to point out to those who consider the question of standardization of the greatest importance that we have already gone some distance along this road. It will, we imagine, scarcely be generally -realized-that-there are already in service ships totalling about 1,000,000 tons deadweight, and equipped with machinery of between 400,000 i.h.p. and 450,000 i.h.p. in which the engines are all type and practically standardized so far as variation in power permits. As this is the result of scarcely more than II years' work, with an intervening period of between four and five years of war, the fact is admittedly striking.

REQUISITION BRINGS BANKRUPTCY.

At the London Bankruptcy Court in mail week the first meeting of creditors was held under a receiving order made against Mr. Albert John Ashwin, shipowner and broker, carrying on business at Billiter Street, E.C., under the style of Ashwin and Company. The Senior Official Receiver reported that Mr. Ashwin estimated his liabilites at £70,000 and valued the assets at about £7,000. Mr. Ashwin stated that he started business as a shipbroker in 1907 and did very well until the outbreak of the war. Early in 1917, with the assistance of borrowed capital, he purchased steamer for £35,000, but the Admiralty requisitioned her until January, 1920. In the following May he contracted to sell her to the Greek Government for £60,000 and received a deposit of £6,000, but in consequence, Mr. Ashwin

LONDON, August 13. General recognition that the the Ruhr rank as one of the most | campaign, with a demonstration at memorable State documents of modern times has led the newspapers to devote columns of space to the reproduction of its contents. The latest British note is, however, the central object of attention and there is every reason to conclude from the Press comments that the Government's aim in deciding on publication in order to rally opinion to its way of thinking has been fully achieved. Much satisfaction is manifested that the British Government has spoken its mind clearly, forcibly and without reserve, after a display of remarkable patience and continual effort to re-establish united Allied action. The Note is described as "essentially pro British," this being an allusion to a recent exhortation by Mr. Baldwin who deprecated the idea of people being either pro-French, or pro-German in viewing current European problems.

The Daily Herald thinks that M. Poincaré would perhaps ad hit the reasonableness of Mr. Baldwin's Lthe new Finance Minister, M. views more quickly if he knew that the premier, in this matter, has the nation behind him."

The Morning Post adopts a sober tone, being apparently undesirous to embarrass a Conservative Premier, although it discerns a bias in favour of Germany in the note: The newspaper is concerned over probable French irritation at the contents. The Daily Mail alone maintains a strong Francophile front, and attacks the Government hip and thigh. It accuses the Government of being out of touch with national opinion and applies to the note the epithets "bad" and "stupid."

PARIS, Aug. 12. The Paris newspapers are of the opinion that the British note is lacking in logic and justice and is not likely to promote a reparations solution. The Echo de Paris says the Note is the preface to a new policy. The British Government has abandoned the path wherein it has walked for twenty years when it appeals to international opinion. France will not change her attitude in face of this crisis.

The Matin says the Note is a marvel of confusion and contradiction and shows, to a degree hitherto unsuspected, the state of moral disintegration into which the British leaders have fallen. No French Government will accept the judgment of any tribunal whatsoever.

The Figaro says, our friends are sufficiently aware of the French viewpoint, which is unchanged, to guess the nature of the French reply. The Gaulois says the Note gives imexpected encouragement to German resistance. L'Oeuvre says the Note proclaims a monstrous principle of priority for bankers over victims.

"Puerile," "unworthy" and "deplorable" are among the adjectives used by Le Journal, which says it is a scandalous attempt to make the victims of fraud pay up.

"Reuter's Service to the China Mall.) IRISH ELECTIONS.

LONDON, August 12. The opening of the Free. State white paper on Reparations and Government candidates' election College Green, Dublin, was attended with considerable disorder. Mr. Cosgrave and other Ministers were subjected to constant interruptions from groups of female Republicans, who distributed over the crowd and who kept up a continuous volume of screaming and yelling. An attempt by the women to rush the platform was frustrated.

The candidates for the elections include the Republicans, Countess Markievicz and Mary McSwiney, and the Free State candidate, Mrs. Powell, sister of the late Mr.

Michael Collins. The late Mr. Michael Collins, Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Provisional Government Army, was ambushed and shot dead in August 1922.], AMSTERDAM, August 13. The Telegraph understands that Colyn, despite his intention to carry out the Navy Bill, will propose drastic economic measures estimated to involve a saving of one hundred million guilders. It is expected that the State Budget for 1924, will show a deficit of one hundred and forty million guilders.

It is understood that M. Colyn will reduce the salaries of State functionaries and railwaymen by fifteen per cent, and that he will also lengthen the legal working day and economise in all branches of social and insurance work.

ACCIDENT MYSTERY.

MOTORIST KILLED BY SHOCK.

It was stated at the inquest at Peterborough on Howard Sheffield Goddard, 24, a hay and straw merchant, that he might have survived the shock of a motor accident In which he was involved if he had received immediate attention. He was found by Mr. Cyril Brown, a motorist, just before midnight on the road about five miles from Peterborough by the side of his wrecked motor-car. Mr. Brown said that Goddard, when asked if he were badly injured, replied that he was not. At the same time Goddard asked him to look for his brother. He left someone with Goddard and returned to Peterborough to inform the police. Inspector Hamps said when he got to the scene of the accident Goddard made no complaint of injury, but said, "Look for my
